The Daily Poem

WHY NOT?

Why not waste a little time,
And do what you like best?

Why not go to sleep late at ten?
Why not go to sleep at four?

Why not sit and smoke a pipe,
And do nothing else all day?

Why not hang around some place,
Till you hear again the call,

Get up upon the roof, in your kilt,
And look down over the land?

Why not waste a little time?
Though it really isn't waste,

It's just a waste from grit and grime
of your work.

Why not go to sleep at ten?
Why not go to sleep at four?

Why not sit and smoke a pipe,
And do nothing else all day?

Why not hang around some place,
Till you hear again the call,

Get up upon the roof, in your kilt,
And look down over the land?

Why not waste a little time?
Though it really isn't waste,

It's just a waste from grit and grime
of your work.

Why not go to sleep at ten?
Why not go to sleep at four?

Why not sit and smoke a pipe,
And do nothing else all day?

Why not hang around some place,
Till you hear again the call,

Get up upon the roof, in your kilt,
And look down over the land?

Why not waste a little time?
Though it really isn't waste,

It's just a waste from grit and grime
of your work.

Why not go to sleep at ten?
Why not go to sleep at four?

Why not sit and smoke a pipe,
And do nothing else all day?

Why not hang around some place,
Till you hear again the call,

Get up upon the roof, in your kilt,
And look down over the land?

Why not waste a little time?

And do nothing else all day?

Why not hang around some place,
Till you hear again the call,

Get up upon the roof, in your kilt,
And look down over the land?

Why not waste a little time?
Though it really isn't waste,

It's just a waste from grit and grime

Why not go to sleep at four?

NEW YORK, July 26.—Not since the famous Clemons-Tender fight at Manhattan Casino here five years ago has the public been so worked up over a boxing match as it appears to be now. LANDIS WILL SAY NOTHING ON BIG TRADE

Commissioner Will Wait Until All Information Has Been Received

THE DODGERS, July 26—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis does not have a "word to say" about the deal which sent Joe Dugan, star third baseman of the Cardinals, to St. Louis and outlander Smith to the New York Yankees, until he was in full possession of all the facts.

It was intimated, however, that Landis had been more than willing to defer to the practice of transferring major players from one team to another while the teams were in the dross of the pennant race.

CLIP AND SAVE THESE

ATHLETICS TO PLAY RADIALS THIS EVENING

Crucial Game of Second Division Arouses Interest of Football Fans

There is an indescribable thrill and sense of freedom and fun in the well-worn wooden shot proceeding in long, arching flights through the air. And the home team, the first to score from club easier, and in consequence need long a time he never really conquered them. This is a pity for the woodies, who have been beaten by the radials, but it does require courage to face the future. The game will be fought between the temporary but successful adventures of an iron club from "the land of the rising sun" and the woodies of our own, and can never take the place of the former in the hearts of the true fans in that class competition.

One of the superior woodies shot today was George Hartman, the Chicago master. Hartman is about the size of a man, and is a member of the Knepper, the Iowa college star.

Allen Players—"Passing of the Third Floor Back," All Week.

It is only when a precedent is made that a companion may be made at the same time. An invitation by the Allen Players at the New Empire theatre this week where they have been playing "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," made so famous by Sir John Johnston Forbes-Robertson, has been twice in Edmonton. An Allen Player is out with a straight request that the show be composed, not of the original play, but of the Forbes-Robertson, but any similar offering, will be accepted.

Fortunately the Allen Players are made up of a number of peculiarities, and it is the oddities of themselves to characters, and they have been playing "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." An Allen Player is out with a straight request that the show be composed, not of the original play, but of the Forbes-Robertson, but any similar offering, will be accepted.

"Passing of the Third Floor Back," All Week.

No final presentation of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" has ever been given by a stock company than the current attraction at the Metropolitan Players with Miss Ruth Stewart, Alice St. Louis and Tom Moore living up to their parts. The Allen Players are making a name for themselves in the city.

Johnston Forbes-Robertson upon his return to England, when he was asked if he would like to go to Edmonton, where he had been invited by the English stage, for a few weeks, he declined, having seen the role at every performance.

A house record was broken at the New Empire theatre yesterday when hundreds of people turned away. A similar crowd is anticipated for the remaining days of the play. The Allen Players are advised to reserve their seats for the opening of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

When Hodge Warren, millionaire steel magnate, married Natalie Lane, an artist, he was asked if he had any objection to the marriage, telling his son that he had no objection, but that his wife Hodge refused to let him do it. His bride and son went to work to try to support her.

But the father was determined to insist that his son should marry Natalie. One evening the son reported to him that they had followed the artist to a room where the artist, a famous artist, Andrew Warhol, was staying. The father was confident that he had at last discovered a way to dissuade that man from doing what he wanted to do.

How the mystery of the shooting was solved is the subject of the story, the father, vindicating Natalie, forms one of the interesting episodes of the play. The play is a Canadian National attraction starring Anita Stewart, the woman of the year in Canada, and Tom Moore, the man of the year in Canada.

The Allies have decided to establish some measure of control over the German financial affairs, and the German Government has consented to the proposal.

Just what amount of regulating authority they are to assume is not defined in the despatches. But Allied representatives are pledged in no way to any department of the ministry of Finance at Berlin and will have personal supervision over the operations. Whether they are to direct the operations to any extent or under any circumstances, or are to function as mere observers, is not stated.

In any case they will be in a position to know what is the actual income and outgo, to study economic conditions, to check the representations of the German Government to keep the Allies informed as to the true financial position of the country. If they can do no more, the arrangement should make for clearer understanding, less suspicion and better feeling.

It is surely time for Germany to face the position of first million power in the world to the status of a bankrupt South American republic whose creditors insist upon suspending the collection of its taxes and the payment of its present debts. This is the measure of what Wilhelm did to Germany. He aspired to rule the world; and left Germany so crippled that it cannot even administer its own internal affairs.

That the German Government has consented to any measure of Allied control is strong evidence that it is at the end of its resources. No independent nation will tolerate outside interference in its finance and politics, and a solvent business concern will put up a stiff fight if installed on the premises. When the creditors take charge state sovereignty becomes a myth, and independence is at an end. That the position is accepted should go to a long way to convince France that the Masters at Berlin are have been sincere in declaring that they could not find the means to meet the reparations payments. The Allies are now creating a agency by which they may collect the debts due them with the consent of the German authorities. Such consent would hardly be given if Berlin had been fully pleading poverty while making only half-hearted attempts to meet its obligations. Until such a time as the funds can be made to provide the funds, the onus of proof rests with those who claim that Germany could pay if it wanted to. And unless such a sum as $100,000,000,000 is set aside, there will be no sufficient argument for the view that the reparations account will have to be revised downward, and that the Allies will have to pay a still larger share of the cost of the war.

What the Allies' decision means is that the Allies are finally going to Berlin after all — four years after they should have gone, according to all precedents. Germany has been treated with a consideration such as no country in like circumstances ever received before. The victorious army of the Allies did not march through the empire and quarter itself about the capital. Terms were not dictated where the war was lost, but the Allies did what could be avoided to arouse bitter feelings among the German people or to subject the country to needless humiliation. Germany was dealt with as though it had been the unwilling tool of the Kaiser. It was

Gambling--Not Trading--in Wheat

The preliminary discussion in the Saskatchewan legislature on the wheat board bill was pathetic to the point of tragedy—it was sincere. From the premier down the speakers discussed the proposed measure as though it was to be a life belt for the otherwise sinking farming industry. The line of argument was strongly reminiscent of that taken in the federal parliament on the bill to regulate the grain market. The government ownership of the National Railways and the creation of the Government Merchant Marine. Government ownership of railways was to save the country from paying the deficits of the railway companies concerned. The Government was to give the grain market a free hand, because the country pays five times as much on railway deficits as before, and the Merchant Marine represents stupendous loss on investment and a greater loss on operation, while ocean freight and profits are high. So far as the Canadian Merchant Marine is concerned.

If private enterprise, because of special circumstances, could not run railways or sail ships successfully, sad experience proves that government operation is much further from success. What is needed is to get the grain market so that government operation of the wheat trade will do better for either the individual or the state than government operation of railways and ships has done! Is profitable trading in wheat less difficult, less complicated or less subject to fluctuation than buying and selling in the business of transportation by either land or sea?

The members of the Saskatchewan legislature, as well as H. W. Wood in the U.F.A. Magazine, for the national marketing of wheat, is that the farmer needs to have his own organization, he could get by the system of open marketing, and that the system of national marketing will give him that price. If it is true that the national marketing will ensure the farmer a better price, then the system should be adopted. What happened to the grain of foreign countries? If it will not be justified, then justification. Unless as a result of the wheat board act the farmer gets a better price, the financial obligations imposed by the act upon the provinces are in the nature of taxation; the bureaucracy which it imposes creates and maintains only an irritation and an impediment, while its compulsory feature becomes plain tyranny.

In times past two principal accusations have been made against the grain trade:

1. That under the system of open marketing from producer to consumer.
2. Making undue profits through holding wheat for speculation, to the loss of the producer.

It will be noted that neither of these accusations figure in the reasons now given for national marketing. Neither is it suggested that there is waste or inefficiency in the transformation to the grain trade.

That under the system of open marketing from producer to consumer, the process of transfer from producer to consumer is slow.
